

The AMA History Project Presents: Biography of ANDREW KENEDY

Written by AMA staff (01/1992); Transcribed by JS (05/2008), Reformatted by JS (10/2009)

The following was published in the January 1992 issue of Model Aviation magazine. Andrew was a 1991 Charles Hampson Grant Scholarship winner.

Andrew Kenedy, a junior at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, New York, received $3,000. The Florence, Kentucky, native has a double major in Aeronautical Engineering and Biology. He is ranked as the top student at the University.

Andrew enjoys building and repairing models, recently completing construction on his first Pattern ship. He also has scratch-built an Italian Fibrini and a T-34 Mentor. He enjoys instructing beginners and participating in static displays and contests. He serves as secretary and treasurer of the aeromodeling club at college.

A 1989 graduate of Boone County High School in Florence, Kentucky, Andrew has received nearly 60 awards and certificates for his accomplishments in academics, music, and athletics. He has studied and played classical guitar for twelve years. He was also a member of hockey teams that won several state titles.
